

The pid is being passed while loading the kernel module. This pid is used to find the task_struct using the function pid_task() which gives the pointer to the task_struct corresponding to given vpid. We can find vpid from pid by using find_vpid() function.

The pointer from task struct allows us to access the user id and pgid and then we print the pid, user id, pgid to kernel buffer using printk.